Consortium at Symphony Park began with a phone call to Las Vegas City Hall in December 2021, inspiring a vision to create a world-class performing arts campus in Symphony Park.

Led by Raja Rahman—a Steinway Artist, Juilliard graduate, and former educator at The Juilliard School and Indiana University’s Jacobs School of Music—the Consortium brings together decades of experience in performance, arts leadership, and cultural development.

After serving as President & CEO of Nevada School of the Arts (2022–2026), Raja now leads the Consortium at Symphony Park with a mission to unite Las Vegas’ performing arts organizations and build a lasting cultural legacy for the city.
